

Privacy Policy for the European Board for Accreditation in Pneumology (EBAP)

Privacy policy for the website of the European Board for Accreditation in Pneumology (EBAP). EBAP is committed to protecting your online privacy. This policy governs page hosted by EBAP and any other websites it will create in the future.

EBAP uses the information it collects about you to better understand how its website is used, to send information on EBAP you have requested or that may be considered of interest to you. To understand how your personal information will be treated, please read the following policy. This policy may change from time to time so please refer to it periodically. In addition, we will where applicable send you a notice of any such change.

What identifiable information is collected from you?

The type and amount of information received and stored by EBAP depends on how you use the EBAP website. You can access most EBAP pages sections without revealing any personal information, except in the case of accreditation applications.

EBAP does not collect information identifying you personally (such as your name, address, phone number or e-mail address) unless that information is voluntarily disclosed. There are instances where EBAP requests information that does identify you personally for the purpose of providing you with specific services or of corresponding with you. Information that you supply in this way will not be shared with any third party except where needed to provide a requested service or required by law.

If you register to request information you may be asked to provide personal information such as your name, postal address and e-mail address. This information is collected only with your knowledge and permission and is kept in various EBAP databases and mailing lists.

How does EBAP use the information?

EBAP does not distribute, sell or rent user information to anyone. EBAP uses the information collected about you to improve its understanding of web visitors, to send information that you have requested or that may be considered of interest to you.

With whom may EBAP share the information?

EBAP will not disclose any information identifying you personally, except with your prior explicit permission or where required by law.

Opting out, changing or having your information deleted

At any time, you can ask to see your data by contacting us through “Contact us” form. EBAP takes very seriously the accuracy of the information it holds on you. Where contact details are not provided on the page and if you wish to have all your personal information deleted from our databases, you can contact us at ebap.info@ebap.org for further information.

What choices are available to you regarding collection, use and distribution of the information?

EBAP may send you e-mail messages and newsletters which you consented to and are of interest to you. You can indicate that you do not wish to receive such e-mail messages or newsletters by contacting us through “Contact us” form.

How does EBAP protect your personal information?

EBAP ensures to the best of its ability that any personal information you provide is secure on its systems. However, it cannot guarantee that submitting information over the Internet is 100% secure. As a result, EBAP does not confirm or warrant the security of personal information submitted; you do so at your own risk.

Automatically collected information

Cookies (Full Cookies Policy)

EBAP websites use cookies in order to provide you with a more personalized web experience. A cookie is a text-only string of information that is created and stored on your computer by your browser. It contains information about your visit that your browser uses to personalize certain pages or elements. For statistical analysis purposes, a cookie may also be used to pass a randomly generated and anonymous unique number to our servers. Cookies cannot be used by themselves to identify you. A cookie will typically contain the name of the domain from which the cookie has come, as well as the lifetime and expiration of the cookie, and a value, usually a text value or a randomly generated unique number.

If you do not wish to receive cookies, you can easily modify your browser to reject all cookies or to notify you whenever one is about to be placed on your computer. However, if cookies are not accepted you may not be able to experience all the interactive features of the EBAP website.

Log files

Most web servers, including EBAP, use log files, which record information such as service provider IP addresses, browser brand and version, referring websites, search terms used, average number of requested pages, average visit duration, total visitor traffic and information gathered for aggregate use.

Disclaimer

EBAP website contain hypertext links to other sites. EBAP is not responsible for any third-party content or privacy practices accessible through this website. We do not endorse any of the companies or opinions listed in or linked to or from the website. We also do not accept or host any advertising.